HEALTH OFFICER PORTER TALKS OF DIPHTHERIA

TELLS SOMETHING ABOUT THE TREATMENT OF THE DISEASE. DURING 1904 THERE WERE ONLY 145 CASES IN THE STATE.

In his annual report issued on the 9th inst., State Health Officer Porter has this to say concerning the treatment of diphtheria.

Anti-diphtheria serum, when administered sufficiently early in diphtheria, will prevent a fatal result; so, too, will the remedy cause immunity against an attack to those exposed.

The consensus of opinion of physicians is that the administration of the antidote is a harmless procedure, never causing evil results, and even in simple sore throat (follicular tonsillitis) is productive of speedy relief and quick return to health. It is not understood therefore why any delay should occur in prescribing the serum when symptoms of a doubtful nature present themselves, or why a "wait" should be advised or permitted until the laboratory makes an examination of the specimens and the little patient dies, while the profession is wrangling over the diagnosis. The expression of surprise at any lagging in giving the remedy is warrentable, when it is mentioned that well-regulated drug stores everywhere in the state constantly keep in stock the different antidotes, especially that of diphtheria, and that the state pays for the serum on the attending physician's certificate that the patient is indigent or unable to purchase such a costly drug.

A Specific. Diphtheria antitoxin is considered a specific when early given in the disease, and being ever on hand, easily obtainable, even by the poor, and harmless in effect it would seem to be almost criminal neglect to omit its use, when the slightest doubt exists as to the true character of a throat trouble. Diphtheria, next to smallpox, is the easiest of all the preventable diseases to intercept and suppress in its spread. If experience in dealing with contagious maladies has taught anything it has certainly demonstrated two truths, and, being truths, are indisputable facts: That anti-diphtheric serum, early given, cures and prevents diphtheria, and that vaccination, when successfully done, prevents smallpox. Therefore it may be asked, with pertinent reason, if these statements are undeniably true, why the state should not adopt, employ and enforce measures which have passed the stage of experiment and entered into the authority of fact, against diseases which yearly make many sorrowful households, and, to not a few, helpless suffering and invalidism for future time.

Lives Saved.

In this connection it is pleasing to recite that the State Board of Health was able, by a liberal donation of anti-diphtheric serum, to save the lives of several children in one family during the past year, which, although somewhat costly—$125—the money part of the transaction sank into petty insignificance when compared with the saving of life by a wonderful achievement of science when discovering a remedy so potent against a deadly disorder, and the still more latter is what the advertiser is after. Mr. Buckner will be accompanied by his wife and little girl.

The members of the Tourist Club will enjoy an excursion this morning, which will leave the city wharf at 10 o'clock. The excursion will be upon launches and will go as far as the bay yard.

Many tourists who came to Pensacola to witness the Mardi Gras festivities, are still lingering in the city and vicinity, charmed by this delightful spring weather. beneficent provision of the state, exercised through the instrumentality of an institution purposely organized to supervise and care for the health of the people.

Counties and Cases.

The records of the office show that there were 145 cases of diphtheria reported to the board, with 18 deaths, in the following counties: Alachua, 8; Brevard, 3; DeSoto, 3; Duval, 59; Escambia, 20; Hillsborough 36; Leon, 7; Manatee, 4; Putnam, 5; Santa Rosa, 2. The cost of antitoxin distributed to indigent patients was $320.94.

COMMUNICATED WITH KEY WEST

WIRELESS STATION AT PENSACOLA WAS TESTED DURING YESTERDAY.

A test of the wireless telegraph station at the Pensacola navy yard was made yesterday, when communication was established with the Key West station, a distance of about six hundred miles.

The local station has just been completed, and the test yesterday was about the first to be made. The local station was in communication with Key West for some time, and exchanged several messages in order to ascertain if the instruments were in good working order, and that communication could be maintained for long distances.

The system now in use is known as the DeForest system, which has been adopted by the navy. The DeForest Company has the contract for installing plants at a number of points, including Panama and installed the plant at Pensacola.

A SCHOOL FOR SPIDERS.

The insects taught to weave their webs only on bottles.

"This is my spiders' school," said the young woman, and with a little stick she brushed a few webs from the wall. "Not much to look at, is it? Only a dozen rows of wine bottles, a great many spiders and a great many webs. I make nevertheless a little money out of the school."

"Spiders' webs are in demand among surgeons and among the makers of certain astronomical instruments, the surgeons using them to stop hemorrhages with and the instrument makers using them in certain very delicate instruments—instruments wherein, strange to say, a human hair would not take their place, because a hair is neither fine enough nor durable enough to serve the required purpose."

"Besides selling the webs I also sell the spiders. A corrupt class of wine dealers buy the spiders. These men put them among bottles of new wine. I train the spiders to weave on bottles only—I tear down webs woven anywhere else—and it is amazing how quickly these well schooled pupils of mine will cover a case of port or claret with cobwebs, giving to the wine an appearance of great age."

"Six spiders in a week will add two years to the aspect of a dozen bottles of wine; hence you will readily see how valuable the ugly little creatures are to wine merchants of a certain type."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

SEWING COTTON.

The Humble Origin of the Great Thread Industry.

The origin of sewing cotton was told at a cotton manufacturers' meeting by the head of the great thread house of Paisley, Scotland. It was discovered in 1803 by his grandfather, who had a little business in Paisley, making silk twine for heddies, which were used by every weaver. The silk came from Hamburg, and in 1803 Napoleon caused the stock held there to be burned in order to hamper British trade. The weavers were in despair, but James Clark conceived the idea that cotton yarns could be twisted together to form the twines.

The experiment succeeded, and from this grew the idea that cotton could be substituted for flax in the manufacture of sewing thread and would not be so coarse and harsh. He began the manufacture of the thread in a very small way. It was at first put up in skeins and had to be wound into little balls by the purchaser, and then Mr. Clark invented the modern spools. He had them made by a wood turner, half a gross at a time. They cost him sixpence a dozen, and he charged the purchaser of the thread a halfpenny for the spool, which, however, was refunded when the spool was returned. The ladies of Paisley used to come to his shop with their spools and wait while he wound the thread on them. From this small beginning grew a great industry.

Young Hunter's Hard Luck.

"Some years ago," said a hunter, "when I lived down on the eastern shore of Maryland, where I was born, I had passed a whole day gunning rabbits and had not killed one. On my way home through the woods I met a boy who had a live rabbit. Ashamed to go home empty handed, I gave the boy 25 cents for his rabbit."

"I then said to myself, 'I will tie Mr. Rabbit to a bush and kill him, and the folks at home will say Ed shot a rabbit.' I took a shoestring and fastened the rabbit to a bush and then stood off, took aim and fired. When the gun had stopped kicking I saw Mr. Rabbit flying through the woods. My bullet had cut the shoestring in twain and had set the little animal free."—Baltimore American.

BROOKLYN WILL BE HERE SUNDAY

CRUISER LEAVES NEW ORLEANS THIS MORNING AT 8 O'CLOCK. REPORT THAT TEXAS HAS BEEN SPOKEN.

The cruiser Brooklyn, which has been at New Orleans during the Mardi Gras festivities, and which will be the flagship of Rear Admiral Sigsbee, in command of the Caribbean squadron, will leave New Orleans this morning at 8 a. m. for Pensacola. It will take the Brooklyn a day to reach the jetties owing to the necessity of going down the river at slow speed, and the big vessel will probably reach Pensacola and anchor off the navy yard before noon to-morrow morning.

A report was current late last night that the battleship Texas, which was detailed, about two weeks ago, to test the wireless stations that have recently been erected along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts, had been in communication with the wireless station at the navy yard late yesterday afternoon. The report, however, could not be verified. It is believed that the Texas will reach this port considerably in advance of the fleet and that she, together with the Brooklyn, will remain until the record target practice is completed.

The combined fleet is scheduled to reach Pensacola on or about March 25.

MIDSHIPMAN ON BROOKLYN SHOT

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT WHILE SEVERAL SAILORS WERE ENGAGED AT TARGET PRACTICE.

New Orleans, March 10.—It developed yesterday that Midshipman John M. Poole, who was appointed from Delaware, and who joined the cruiser Brooklyn here last week, was accidentally shot aboard that vessel last Tuesday morning while several sailors were at target practice on the main after deck. He was only slightly wounded, as the bullet from a 22 calibre rifle, which was used as a sub-caliber, in place of the regular 8-inch gun, went through his ankle. He was attended by the ship's surgeon, and is now confined to his stateroom unable to walk.

Poole was unaccustomed to the Brooklyn's target practice routine, as he only joined the ship several days ago. The men at practice were firing at a dummy target when Poole passed in the rear of the target. He uttered a piercing cry and declared that he had been shot. Several men went to his assistance and he was quickly carried below decks.

Captain Hawley, of the Brooklyn, attaches no significance to the accident, as it was entirely due to Poole's carelessness.

His escape is considered miraculous.

Sword Stands in Churches. Sword stands came into use in London churches when it became customary to carry the city sword before the lord mayor as he went to church in state. During service the sword was placed in the stand or case provided for it, and in his own church the lord mayor generally had the stand placed conveniently near to or in his family pew. This custom, which was quite common before the end of the sixteenth century, apparently began in the reign of Elizabeth. The state visits to the city churches were discontinued in the mayoralty of Sir R. N. Fowler, 1883.—London Standard.

Profitable Inventions.

No one class of inventions has been so profitable to both the manufacturer and the inventor as musical instruments and appliances for same. Numerous improvements to the piano have been a source of large fortunes, and various devices are at present being continuously applied. Radically new instruments possessing real merit are the inventions needed in this line. The public is always ready to adopt almost anything new in both wind and stringed instruments.—Inventor.

"Oh! Ouch! Stop that!" yelled Tommy.

"Why, Tommy, aren't you ashamed?" exclaimed his mother. "I wouldn't cry like that if it were my hair that was being combed."

"I'll bet you would if I wuz doin' the combin'," replied Tommy fiercely.—Catholic Standard and Times.
